The woman's tied to a lounge in the kitchen. The woman's hands were tied behind her back, her feat were fastened tightly together, and a cord bound her to the lounge. The discovery was made by Annie Deal, thirteen years old, whose parents live in the house. The girl had rapped several times upon the door of Mrs. Miller's apartments, and, failing to get an answer, opened the kitchen door with a key from one of the doors of her own home. Annie screamed and the neighbors rushed to the apartments. Just then Mrs. Miller's husband entered, and, seeing his wife bound to the lounge, cut the string and attempted to revive her. Falling in this, Dr. Radioff, of No. 213. Boerum-st., was called, but the woman revived before he reached the house. Mrs. Miller was unable to explain how she was bound to the lounge. The room was in disarder, and an examination showed that clothing valued at 35 had been stolen. The fanlight ever the kitchen door leading to the hallway was found open. Miller hastened to the Stage-st. station, where he reported the case. He was detained and Detectives Becker and Dougherty sent to the bouse. They some polyment with Mrs. Miller, when The woman's

Mrs. Miller was in a nervous state when seen yesterday. She said she had told the police that she tied herself as they had threatened to hold her husband for it. Those who saw Mrs. Miller before the cords were cut say she could not have tied herself in the manner she was found. Sergeant O'Connor, of the Stagy-st. station, last night said the police did not believe that the woman had been bound and the apartments robbed.

DEMOCRATS WILL FIGHT.

SHEPARDITES FAVOR A GOLD CANDI-DATE AND WILL WORK FOR ONE.

AN EFFORT TO BE MADE TO SAVE MEMBERS OF THE PARTY FROM BEING TAKEN INTO THE REPUBLICAN CAMP ON THE MONEY QUESTION.

The journey of the Shepardites back to Brooklyt from the State Convention was not as mournful as might have been expected after the unceremon ot to say rude, manner in which they were "kicked ut." Mr. Shepard voiced the sentiment of his flock when he said that he was relieved that affairs had taken the turn that they did, inasmuch as it relieved his organization from any necessity of supporting the nominees and platform of the Chicago Convention, if they should be for free sliver. He was convinced that the local regular Democracy would be caught in the trap of free silver, and that at least for this coming campaign the Shepard Democracy would represent the majority of Democrats in Kings County, who were bitterly opposed to the free silver

The Shepardites are in favor of a second Dem cratic candidate, a gold man on a gold platform, and they even went so far in the ride home as to discuss methods and men. The two men they considered available candidates for the Presidency of the gold Democracy were ex-Governor William E. Russell, of Massachusetts, and the Secretary of Agriculture, J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska. Some doubt was J. Sterling Morton, of Nebraska. Some doubt was expressed by the reformers as to whether Mr. Russell would be willing to head a "conscience fight" on behalf of the gold Democrats. There were many points which they considered would make Mr. Morton an excellent candidate, more particularly the fact that he halfs from the far West, and is so stanch a gold man that even the fact that his own stanch a gold man that even the fact that his own State has been swept by the silver heresy has not shaken him. No active work looking to the selection of a third candidate will be done, of course, until after the National Convention. In the first place, there is the faint possibility that silver may not control at Chicago, but more important than this, the independents are anxious to wait and see just what States, if any, boit the Chicago Convention, and thus ascertain what States might be expected to send delegations to a gold Democratic National Convention. It is probable that almost immediately after the National Convention adjourns the committee of the Shepard State organization, the emblem of which is a full-rigged ship, and the State name of which is "Democratic Party: Reform Organiza-tion," will be called together and select a date and place for holding a State Convention. This State Com place for nothing a state on the from Brooklyn and New-York and Westchester and Richmond counties. Edward M. Shepard, Harrington Putnam and S. Perry Stur-ges are members of the committee. The State Convention thus called will then issue a call for a Na-tional Convention. Mr. Shepard will not be suggested by the Shepardites for the nomination for the Presidency, for fear it might look as if he were simply seeking personal fame instead of fighting for a principle. The Shepardites are free to acknowledge that a large number of gold Democrats in Brooklyn, and, indeed, throughout the State, are going to vote the Republican ticket, and the principal purpose of their third-party move, they say, will be as many Democrats as possible in line, for fear they may become Republicans permanently.

Charles J. Patterson, chairman of the Shepardite General Committee, looked far from cast down when visited by a Tribune reporter yesterday.
"We are perfectly satisfied with the result at Saratoga," he said, "because of the probability of the adoption of a free-silver platform at Chicago. which we could not and would not support."

When asked about the abuse that was heaped upon his organization by Thomas F. Grady and Bernard J. York, he said: They were mad. Tammany Hall is not open to the argument which we made, that certain moral principles would not permit us to support another organization. Such vulgar and baseless abuse as was indulged in by Senator Grady has never been sed against any organization of which I know. It ganization among decent people. The decay of the State organization of the Democracy was never so pparent as at this convention. The number of lelegates was few. I am informed that the Kings County delegation, which should have been sixtythree, fell far short of that. The afternoon session of the convention was sparsely attended, only a quarter of the seats being filled, and there being no enthusiasm except perfunctory applause for those ambitious of preferment. Perhaps the decay was ambitious of preferment. Perhaps the decay was nowhere so marked as in the personnel of the committees. The Committee on Credentials consister of about fifty members, and only twenty-line could be gotten together to hear our contest. Formerly this committee had upon it able men who preserved the appearance of fairness and who preserved order. This committee had upon it searcely a man of any ability, with the exception of Mr. Ridgway, of Brooklyn, who took no part except to vote. The committee preserved no order, and secured no fair hearing. There were many interruptions of the most offensive nature, which were tolerated by the chairman, Mr. Borst, who for all practical purposes might as well have spent his time in the open air.

REPUBLICANS GREET DELEGATES. RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED BY THE BROOKLYN RE-PUBLICAN CLUB-WOODBUFF WARM-LY GREETED.

The Brooklyn Republican Club held a meeting last evening in its rooms, in Pierrepont-st., which took the form of a reception to the National delegates. On the evening the nominations were made the club met, and made known its approval of the Convention's work by passing resolutions which spoke of the candidates and the platform in terms of the highest praise. Last night's gathering was more social in its nature. It was a good illustration of what harmony should be. Leading representatives of both the local factions were present. and the greetings exchanged between the rival leaders were not less cordial than those interchanged between the voters of the same faction. By 9 o'clock the rooms were crowded with members and guests, and in the assemblage were many of the most prominent and influential Republicans n the city.

The reception of the evening was given to Frank-In Woolruff, a former president of the club, who resigned a month or more ago because of the club's refusal to adopt certain resolutions. Mr. Woodruff has persisted in keeping away from the clubhouse since his resignation was handed in, and his appearance last night was unexpected but exceedngly welcome. He was heartly greeted by all the members.

The rooms were prettily decorated in the National colors, and in conspicuous places on the wails were abstracts from one of Major McKinley's speeches. taken from The Tribune, and reproduced in large

Brief speeches were made by several of the delegates, and the following resolutions, presented by Marinus Turk, were unanimously carried:

THE TWENTIETH WARD ABLAZE

The Twentieth Ward Republicans held an en-thusiastic meeting last night in Philosophical Had, No. 416 Adelphi-st. John B. Summerfield, president of the Twentieth Ward Republican Commitee, presided, and Prederick Goodwin was secretary.

KLEIN MAY BE SET FREE.

District-Attorney Backus will ask to-day probably, though he may wait a day or so, to have the indictments against former Fire Commissioner Benjamin Lewis, former Detective George Zundt and former Assistant Fire Marshal Charles Rice, for their alleged connection with the conspiracy falsely to prosecute David Weinig, dismissed. That District-Attorney Backus had made up his mind to this dismissal was first learned yesterday, when letters containing his decision were received by Benjamin F. Tracy, John F. Clark and Jesse Johnson, counsel respectively for Lewis, Zundt and Rice. In this letters Mr. Backus gives as a reason for his determination that it would be impossible for him to prepare the cases for trial before the summer vacation; that one of the witnesses, without whose testimony a conviction could not be expected, is ill and confined in a hospital, from which he is unable to be brought forth and placed on the witness-stand, and that the nature of his disease is such that his recovery is improbable. Mr. Backus further states that Judge Hurd had said that the indictments against these three men would be dismissed if they were not brought to trial before the summer vacation sets in. Therefore, the District-Attorney says, he has come to the decision that he will consent to such dismissal.

Yesterday's letters from the District-Attorney were preceded a day or so before by another batch of letters, which stated that he had about decided

The arrest of Lewis, Zundt and Rice early in March last, and their indictment on March 15, caused a great surprise in Brooklyn. They were charged with a conspiracy in connection with Jacob Klein, the object of which was to criminally prosecute David Weinig, who was in the employ, at that time, of the city, helping several members of the detective force in gathering in some of the gang of firebugs that infested New-York and Brooklyn several years ago. Hirschkopf, of New-York, was alleged to be at the head of this gang, whose method was to insure houses in New-York and Brooklyn, then send certain of the conspirators to set fire to them, and to collect the insurance. Hirschkopf usually attended to the adjustment and collection, it was charged. Information was given by some of the gang to the New-York officials, and prosecutions began which resulted in the conviction of seven perwhich resulted in the conviction of seven persons. Some of the accomplices of the firebugs were used in these trials as witnesses, some before they had been arrested, and some afterward. No arrests were at first made in Brooklyn, but an investigation of certain suspicious fires was begun, and Weinig, who was well acquainted with some of the firebugs, was engaged to co-operate with the police in shadowing some of the suspects. Fire Marshal Lewis reported that most of these Brooklyn fires were free from expection of areas. suspicion of arson.

HISTORY OF THE CASE.

Weinig was arrested in New-York and charged with burglary, but he was discharged. Almost | Saule, Sat. immediately afterward he went before the Grand Jury and began to give information against the firebugs. The next day after he did this he was arrested on the complaint of Jacob Klein, the man who has just been tried a second time, on a charge of arson. At this time Klein preferred a charge of blackmailing against Weinig, and said that he had represented himself as an Assistant Fire Marshal, and threatened to have Klein arrested for his fire if he did not pay $500. Klein arrested for his fire if he did not pay 8, to the Fire Marshal through Weinig Afts Klein swore to the complaint against Weinig, of which Judge Walsh issued the warrant for his arrest early in 1834, and held him for the Gran hory. arrest early in 1834, and held him for the Grand-Jury. Klein was asked to give a description of the man he was charging with blackmail. The description he gave did not correspond with that of Weinig. Lewis and Klein both testified against Weinig before the Grand Jury, but that body refused to indict.

Lewis was connected with the alleged conspira-

Lewis was connected with the alleged sonspira-cy through allegations by the District Attorney's office that he had sent for persons who had had suspicious fires for which they had been arressed, suspicious free and to testify that they, too, had been blockmailed by Weinig, or that Weinig had attempted to blackmail them. The attempt was attempted to blackmailed by Weinig, or that weinig had attempted to blackmail them. The attempt was made to connect Zunek and Rice with the alleged conspiracy by the allegation that it was they who brought Klein and the other witnesses to Lewis to add in the prosecution of Weinig.

After Weinig's prosecution falled Jacob Klein field to Pailadelphia, where he was arrested and brought back to Brooklyn. He was also charged with covespiring against Weinig, and Lewis, Zundt, Rice and Klein were all indicted. Lewis, Zundt and Rice made light of the proceedings from the first, and claimed that it was a forced indictment. All three of them professed to regret the decision of the District-Attorney to dismiss the indictments against them. Levis has spent already in counsel fees about $2,000, it is said, and Zunek has spent $500. These men say that what they wanted was vindication, and not a dismissal. They say that they feel that the result of a trial would have been a verdict in their favor, KLEIN MAY BE FREED. KLEIN MAY BE PREED.

As the affeired conspiracy with which these men were charged with being connected hinged on the testimony that was developed in the two trials of testimony that was developed in the two trials of Jacob Klein, it was the general belief that the failure to secure his conviction could not but be followed by the dismissal of the other charges. When a Tribune reperter called on District-Attorney Backus yesterday he was much surprised that his intention to dismiss had been made public, and refused to discuss the case. It is said about the District-Attorney's office that Mr. Backus intends to attempt to get a conviction against Klein on a third trial, probably next fall. But there are others who think that the dismissal of the indictments against these three men will be followed a few weeks later by the dismissal of the indictment against Klein. indictment against Klein.
